

QUARAN-ZINE

A collection of work by Akino Gunstone

Welp, here we are...

A preface:

My world came to a screeching halt mid-March after Coronavirus began to ramp up its spread across North America. In an attempt to “flatten the curve” I, like many others, have locked myself away in self-isolation.

Before I knew it, I was mind numbingly bored. Like so so incredibly bored. In all this boredom, binge-eating all my quarantine snacks, watching everything there is to see on Netflix, and spamming my friends on Instagram—this project was born.

This book is dedicated to all my friends, and family in this weird time we are all living in. The world is a bit scary and confusing right now. We don't know when everything will be back to business as usual. But in the meantime, I hope this little book brings you a little joy and most importantly, a smile.

Xx stay healthy, stay safe, and remember—stay at least 6 feet away from me.

—Akino

P.S. I'm not entirely sure why I'm drawing pigeons either....that's a story for another day.

Welcome to my Quarantine life.

duh dohwnn

This is just how I scroll.

I'm going to use this time for me,
self care,
meditat—Ooh!

I've worn the same outfit for 5 days,
how in the hell did this even happen?

Aaaand for the 1000th time today... maybe this time there will be cake. ugh, no cake, just a half a lemon and an open can of tomato paste.

I will not eat all of this today.
I will not eat all of this today.
I will not eat all of this today.
I will not eat all of this today.
I will not eat all of this today.
I will not eat all of this today.

Am I a loser or am I just REALLY good at social distancing?

20 seconds on the clock...

Ahem ahem hm,

you are the dancing queeeeeeen
young and sweeeeeet

Only seventeeeee
da da da duh dun

Dancing queeeen

Feel the beat from the tambourineeeee, oh yeaaaaaaah!

Alright time to shed this guilt! burn off all that food!
make up for past 3 days of sitting on the couch.

and i Rinse...

And i...

Repeat.

the end.

That's all folks!
